Every day across Pierce County, people are coming together to build safe, healthy and thriving communities. I am deeply inspired by the energy and commitment of youth and adults who gather in schools, neighbor’s living rooms, police stations, churches, and community centers to address the pressing community problems. People from every kind of background are investing their talent and personal resources to build safe communities. They work with us to build neighborhood organizations that practice civility from the Key Peninsula to Eatonville, from Northeast Tacoma to the Eastside and South Tacoma and out into Parkland and Spanaway.

As the Executive Director of Safe Streets the generosity, resiliency and grit of the people of our communities has lit the match of inspiration in me every day for the last 29 years.

Our staff is driven by the mission of the Safe Streets and is committed to do justice to the power and wisdom of the people we serve. And in all over this past year we served over 50,000 people.

Our mission – to unite and inspire neighbors, youth and business to build safe, healthy and thriving communities - leads us to be a bridge that connects people to resources and forms coalitions for a safer today - connecting neighbors and youth to build solutions and address immediate as well as long term safety concerns.

We are in this work until every neighborhood is safe! We work to create spaces where young people can vision a safer world and take steps toward that vision. We educate thousands of individuals on proven strategies for prevention of violence and drug use. We turn prevention theories into practice in neighborhoods and schools to halt the problems that erode the foundations of civility and our community.

Together we build safe, healthy and thriving communities. We could not do this work without our donors, volunteers, partners and our supporters.

Community members of Tacoma-Pierce County, we value your talent and your interest in our work of community building. Most of all we are determined to restore peace and peace of mind to our community.

Until Every Neighborhood is Safe,

Priscilla Lisicich
Thank you!

While we continue to seek new ways to make our community safer, we also make sure we stay true to our grassroots neighborhood organizing, which we know is the backbone of our work. Recently, we supported the Parkland neighborhood group in their collective push to get the issue of a drug house in front of the prosecutor’s office and police.

We are so proud of their perseverance in organizing and collaborating with community stakeholders. This team saw a real win: the drug house was shut down and the property is up for sale. These are tangible ways our training and behind-the-scenes organizing helps neighbors stay safe. Making this happen is the work of the entire community. It’s the work of the neighbors, of law enforcement, of code officials, of Safe Streets mobilizers, and of the donors who support our mission and enable us to serve in neighborhoods all over Pierce County.

Your support of Safe Streets keeps us on the front lines of improving public safety in our community. Can you help us during this season of growth?

I’d like to report on our work with the students of Youth Leading Change. During the legislative session, the youth in our program organized an advocacy day. They met with our local legislators and pushed for Washington State to ban the use of “conversion therapy” on minors. The bill passed and was signed last month.
